

The City of Jericho

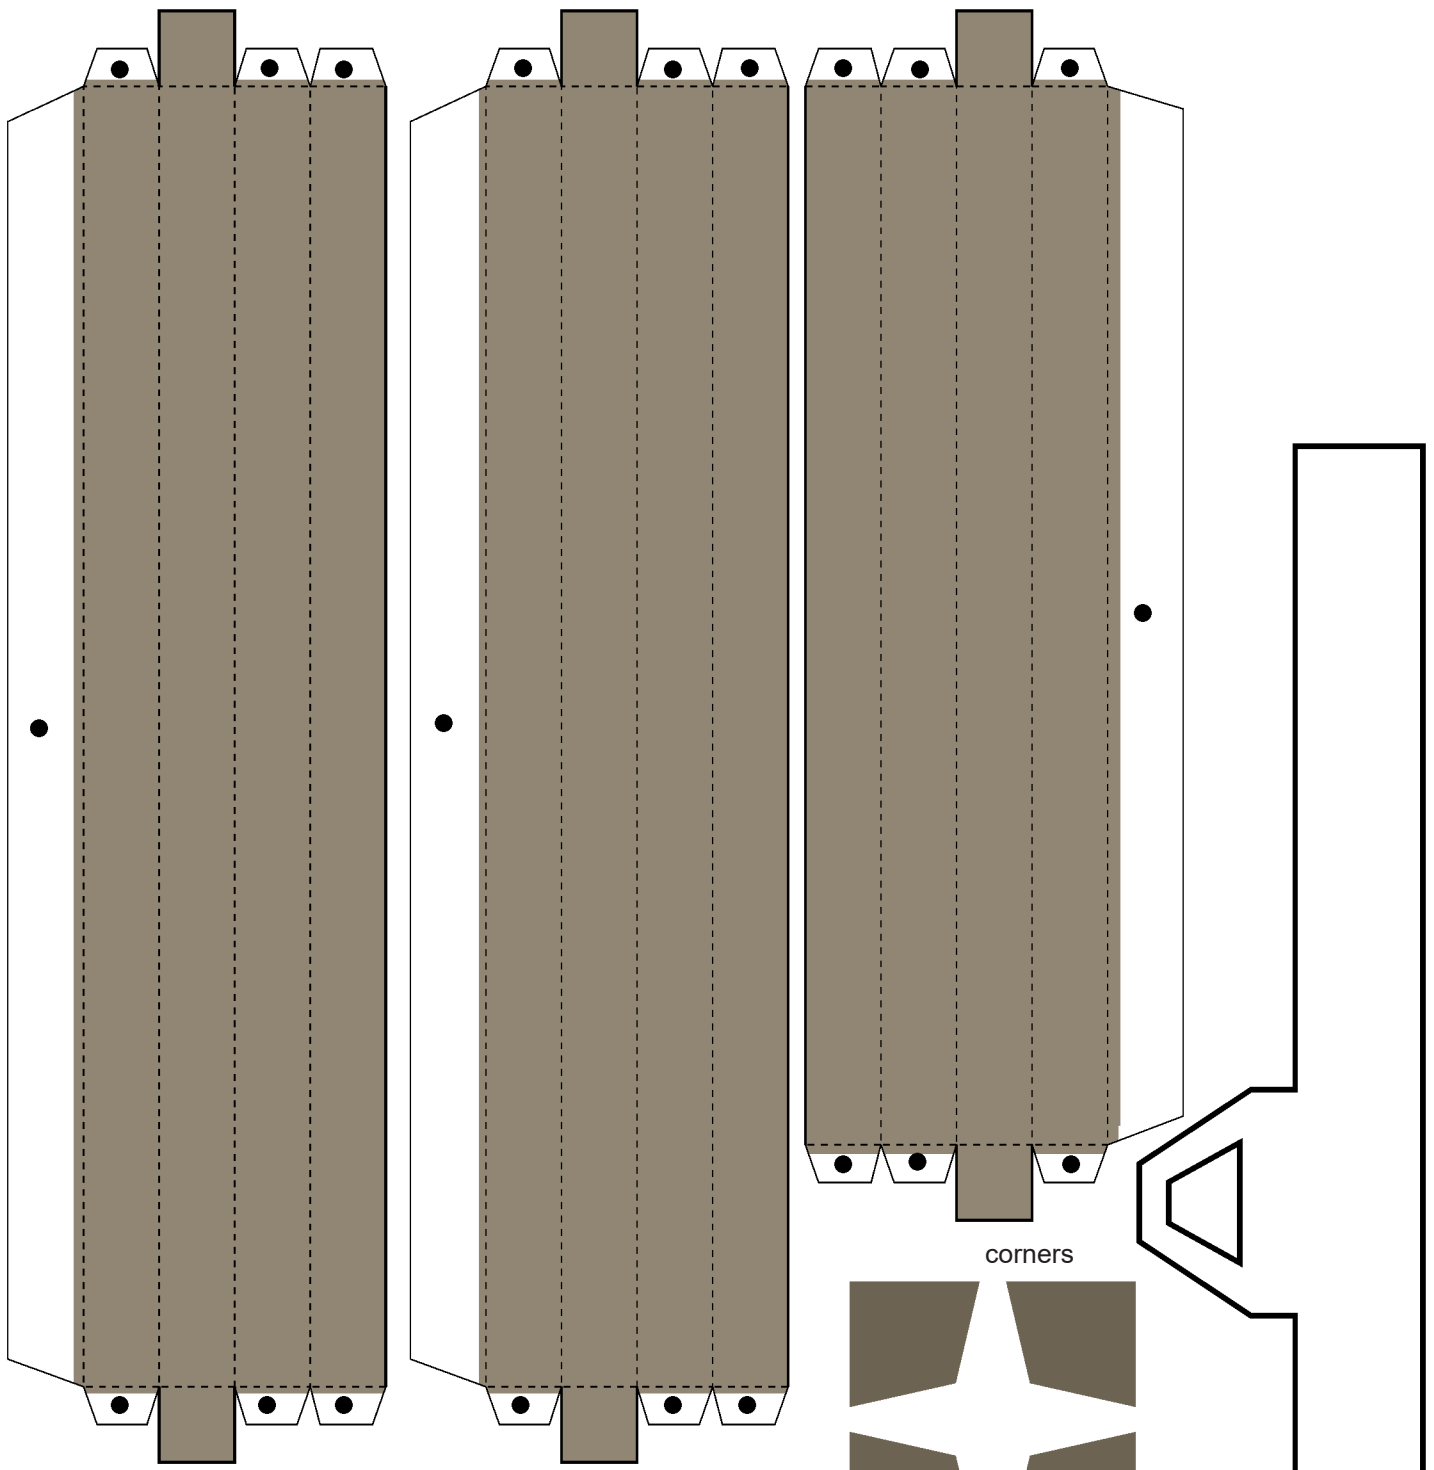

During the conquest of Canaan, Joshua sent spies to the city Jericho. Following God's guidance, the Israelites marched around the walls once every day for six days with the priests and the Ark of the Covenant. On the seventh day they marched seven times around the walls, then the priests blew their ram's horns, the Israelites raised a great shout, and the walls of the city fell.

The city was later rebuilt during the reign King Ahab (1 Kings 16:34) when it once more became an important city. It was in Jericho that later on Jesus met Zacchaeus.

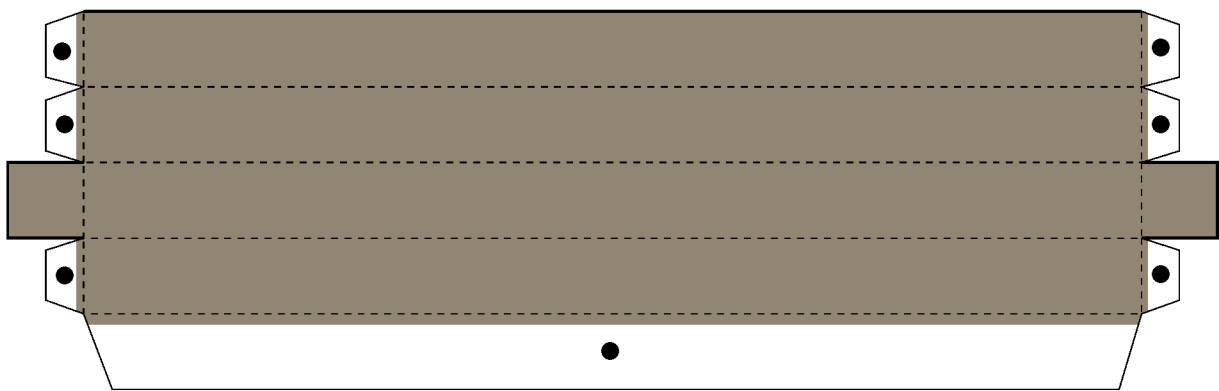

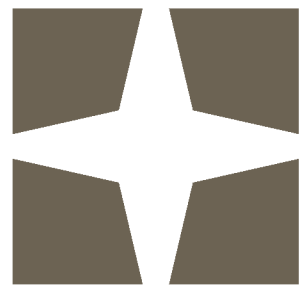

The city's Biblical link is to Rahab, a woman of Jericho who hid the two spies sent by Joshua. Because of her action and faith, God spared her house during the fall of Jericho and she and the people with her were protected. Rahab is honored for her faith in the book of Hebrew (in the New Testament). She is also listed in the book of Matthew as an ancestor of Jesus; she was the mother of Boaz who married Ruth, the great grandmother of King David.

You can read this story in Joshua chapter 2; Joshua chapter 6, verses 1 to 5; Hebrew chapter 11, verses 30 to 31; Matthew chapter 1, verses 5 to 6.
